

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A system for incentivizing the performance of labor remotely from a job site comprises a network of computers through which a laborer may perform the labor. A service provider collects a fee from potential laborers and then provides those laborers
5 with a game like environment to perform work for employers who in turn pay the laborers. Alternatively, an employer may pay the service provider to list the jobs and work with the laborers.